WATER BUFFALO SAFARI

We offer one-week packages, which include fully-guided 5-day hunts in the Aboriginal Reserve of Central Arnhem Land Plateau Mann River in the Northern Territory of Australia.

You will explore many billabong and river systems, beautiful scenic areas with an abundance of native bird life and awe inspiring panoramic views from the escarpments overlooking kilometers of breathtaking scenery where you will see multitudes of buffalo. Your safari is conducted in 4x4 hunting vehicles driving off the beaten track through semi-woodland areas. Once we reach a specific location, we continue our hunt with a leisurely walk amongst the scenic valleys, spring systems, soaks, small creeks and tributaries of the Mann River.

DESCRIPTION

Water buffalo (Bubalus Bubalis), while they are plentiful in numbers, the trick is finding an animal that is considered to be of 'trophy' standard. A trophy bull water buffalo will weigh in at between 700kg up to well over 1000kg, stand 1.5+ meters at the shoulder and will boast a set of horns with well over a 1-metre spread.

These big animals have a keen sense of smell, perfectly good eyesight, acute hearing and, while they are not gun shy, they are very much in tune with their local surroundings. Spook them and they will run forever; annoy them and you had better have your wits about you. Having 1000kg of very annoyed water buffalo bearing down on you will certainly get your attention!
